

18 November 2012

European Academic Heritage Day

European Academic Heritage Network

universeum

European Academic Heritage Day

2012 theme: Objects in contexts?

UNIVERSITÀ
DEGLI STUDI
DI PADOVA

Objects in contexts? Embedding objects that are part of University heritage in their original context(s) is always enriching. However, such objects may also be examined and “read” from different point of views, thus raising new, unexpected and often stimulating issues.

Museum of Anthropology

The mummy of the high priest of Thoth

Aula Emiciclo dell’Orto Botanico – 20 November

On the occasion of the European Academic Heritage Day, the first results of the researches carried out on the Egyptian Ptolemaic mummy preserved at the Museum of Anthropology will be presented.

Morning - 9:00 and 11:00

Educational workshop aimed at classes III-IV-V of the Primary School.

Afternoon - 15:00

Free admission.

PAOLA ZANOVELLO, Department of Cultural Heritage,
University of Padua

TEAM EGITTOVENETO, University of Padua,
University of Ca' Foscari, Venice

NICOLA CARRARA, Museum of Anthropology,
University of Padua

GIULIANO SCATTOLIN, Department of Medicine,
University of Padua

CARMINE GRASSI, Triveneto Office of Scientific Police

On the occasion of the European Academic Heritage Day, all the Egyptian mummified finds preserved at the Museum of Anthropology of Padua University will be shown to the public.